ST. MARGUERITE BOURGEOYS -

THE CHURCH AND THE SAINT A Pilgrimage Through and With St. Marguerite

During her early years in Montreal, Bourgeoys visited women in their homes, teaching them literacy skills. She also arranged a work party to construct the Notre-Dame-de-Bon-Secours Chapel, the first stone church built on the island of Montreal. This chapel, now situated in Montreal, Quebec, was completed in 1771, replacing an earlier structure that had been destroyed by fire in 1754. St. Marguerite Bourgeoys played a pivotal role in the construction of the original stone church, which was finished in 1678.

"...in toil and drudgery, night and day we worked, so as not to burden any of you. 9 Not that we do not have the right. Rather, we wanted to present ourselves as a model for you, so that you might imitate us"

(2 Thess 3:8-9 NASV).

In 1658, Marguerite Bourgeoys returned to France to invite young women to New France, aiming to fortify the community and recruit members for the Congrégation de Notre-Dame. She envisioned a community of religious women dedicated to providing education for girls and social assistance for the colonists. Unlike traditional nuns, the Sisters of the Congrégation de Notre-Dame would not be confined to a convent; instead, they would travel freely as teachers and missionaries.

During her visit, Bourgeoys successfully recruited three women. She later expressed her commitment to them, stating, "I promised that we would have bread and soup and that we would work for our living." The congregation engaged in sewing and laundry while managing a small farm to support its religious, pastoral, and educational endeavors in Montreal.

In 1660, the congregation underwent inspection by François de Laval, the first Roman Catholic bishop of Canada and the inaugural bishop of Quebec. He was notably impressed by the austere living conditions of the Sisters whose income was primarily dedicated to charity and education.

Text to Give! 475.244.9691

We are keeping up with technology! With 97% of smartphone users texting at least once a day, our parish has decided to add the option to give via text. You can text an amount to 475.244.9691, and your transaction will be processed through the Online Giving account associated with the phone number. If your phone number is not recognized, you can continue without an account, associate your number with an existing account, or create an account.
